The Higher Education Mentoring Program participants visited the University of California, San Diego, Monday, February 10, 2014. Students were given a campus tour and a presentation on the campus resources available. They also heard from a student panel composed of UCSD students. The panelist were from various academic majors and were all the first to leave home for college. They shared their personal experiences and words of wisdom with the Higher Education Mentoring program participants. They shared information on how to seek out on-campus resources and emphasized the importance of being actively involved on campus as a way of enhancing their overall academic experience. The day was both informative and fun!

Fun Facts about UCSD:

- Geisel Library is the chief repository for the work of Theodor Geisel (Dr. Seuss), holding more than 8,000 original drawings, sketches, books valued at $2.3 million.

- Fallen Star is the 18th permanent sculpture that reflects Suh’s ongoing exploration of themes around the idea of home, cultural displacement, the perception of our surroundings, and how one constructs a memory of a space.

- Sun God is more than just a landmark. UCSD students claim if one walks backwards with their eyes closed prior to an exam he/she will earn an A letter grade on the exam.

Financial Literacy

On Wednesday, March 26, 2014 Mavel Becerra a Project Manager from Wells Fargo presented to both our Higher Education Mentoring Program participants and their parents on Financial Literacy. Mavel clarified the differences between debit and credit. Moreover, she discussed what APR meant and provided an example of how it plays a huge role on the overall balance overtime and suggested to pay more than the minimum payment in order to establish credibility. She also educated the audience on the realities of a credit score, what negatively decreases, and what increases the score. Parents and students were able to have their questions and concerns answered by Ms. Becerra.
